Wisconsin Rural Health Conference: June 15-17

WHA's annual Wisconsin Rural Health Conference is quickly approaching.

Taking place June 15-17 at the KI Convention Center in Green Bay, the Wisconsin Rural Health Conference is a statewide forum designed to highlight public policy and operational issues affecting rural health care, with a focus on how the delivery of and access to rural health care are changing. Programming will also highlight ways in which data, technology and people processes are improving care and access for rural populations.

This year's conference features a rich agenda which will address critical issues such as employee recruitment, retention and engagement and much more. The conference's full agenda is available here.

Registration for the Wisconsin Rural Health Conference includes a dinner reception at legendary Lambeau Field on Wednesday, June 15. Participants are welcome to bring a guest for an additional cost.

The registration deadline for the Wisconsin Rural Health Conference is June 1. For more information on the 2022 conference, including registration, click here.
